Research Interests

I am an applied economist working at the intersection of environmental and development economics, with a focus on the spatially heterogeneous impacts of public policy on socioeconomic and ecological outcomes. I approach these questions by leveraging big data, remotely sensed information and causal inference techniques.

Current Employment

Grantham Research Institute on Climate Change and the Environment, LSE Postdoctoral Research Officer The Economics of Biodiversity Additionality (BIOADD)	Feb 2023 - present
LSE, Department of Geography and the Environment Visiting Research Fellow	Apr 2023 - present

Education

London School of Economics and Political Science, UK PhD in Environmental Economics Thesis: "Causal Inference in Spatial Environmental Economics" Examined by Prof. Paul Ferraro and Prof. Hendrik Wolff Awarded without corrections	2018 - 2023
London School of Economics and Political Science, UK MSc in Environmental Economics and Climate Change (Distinction)	2016 - 2017
University of Sydney, Australia Postgraduate Coursework Exchange Program (Distinction)	2015
